

Austin "No Doubt" Trout is a native of Las Cruces, New Mexico, where he was born on September 16, 1985. A standout athlete from a young age, he attended Mayfield High School and has lived in New Mexico for 35 years, bringing honor to his home state through a remarkable and multifaceted combat sports career.

Trout's journey to professional greatness began in the amateur boxing circuit, where he compiled an outstanding record of 173 wins and only 43 losses. His dedication and skill culminated in a national boxing championship, a testament to his early promise and a harbinger of future success.

As a professional boxer, Trout continued to build on his amateur foundation, amassing a professional record of 37-5-1. His most significant achievement in the sport was becoming the WBA world junior middleweight champion, an honor that solidifies his place as one of only six boxers from New Mexico to ever hold a world boxing championship. His title-winning fight against the legendary Miguel Cotto, an International Boxing Hall of Fame inductee, stands as a career-defining moment. He also fought and lost a razor-close decision to Canelo Alvarez, another future Hall of Famer, further cementing his legacy in the boxing world.

Beyond the traditional boxing ring, Austin Trout has continued to make history. He is the only boxer to have ever won a bare-knuckle world title, holding the BKFC world championship. With a perfect 5-0 record in bare-knuckle fighting, he has proven his dominance and adaptability across combat sports disciplines.

In addition to his athletic accomplishments, Austin is deeply committed to giving back to his community. He has dedicated his time to helping kids in both Texas and New Mexico, serving as a positive role model and mentor. Austin Trout currently resides in Albuquerque, New Mexico, with his wife and three children. His extraordinary career, highlighted by his world titles and historic achievements, makes him a truly deserving candidate for the Hall of Fame.
